Market Outlook

According to a new report by Expert Market Research titled, "Global Nanocomposites Market Share, Size, Analysis, Report and Forecast 2024-2032", the global nanocomposites market reached a value of around USD 6.21 billion in 2023. Aided by the rising demand for advanced materials in various industries and the growth in applications of nanocomposites, the market is projected to further grow at a CAGR of 16.20% between 2024 and 2032.

Nanocomposites are multiphase solid materials where one of the phases has dimensions in the nanometre range. They have exceptional mechanical, thermal, and electrical properties, making them suitable for a wide range of applications including automotive parts, packaging, electronics, aerospace, construction, and biomedical uses.

The increasing demand for advanced materials with superior properties is a significant driver for the global nanocomposites market growth. The extraordinary properties of nanocomposites, such as improved stiffness, heat resistance, flame retardancy, and barrier properties, have resulted in their extensive use in various industries, especially in the production of automotive parts and electronic components. Nanocomposites are increasingly employed in the food packaging industry, notably in the packaging of cheese, confectionery, processed meat, boil-in-the-bag food, and cereals, among other foods, due to their low permeability to gases, water, and hydrocarbons.
