Join us for an exclusive unveiling of the official parade poster featuring the beloved character "Holly Berry" and a performance by Inspyral Circus. Tulsa Parks will also share exciting details about their Fun Run, the Eggnog Pajama Jog, preceding the parade.

Kenny and I are absolutely thrilled to bring Muriel's beloved character, 'Holly Berry,' to life at the 97th Tulsa Christmas Parade.”

Paul Ross, American Waste Control Vice-President

This year's parade pays homage to the iconic character "Holly Berry," created by the talented artist Muriel Fahrion, known for her creations like Strawberry Shortcake, Care Bears, and Get-A-Long Gang. Holly Berry, featured in the parade's poster art, brings a whimsical touch to the festivities, leading the procession through downtown Tulsa. The poster, designed by Oklahoma artist Salem Gullo, transforms Fahrion's original artwork into a Tulsa winter wonderland, perfectly capturing the essence of our 2023

theme: "Have a Holly Berry Christmas!"

Sarah Abbott, Marketing Manager for American Waste Control, states, "The poster and route map can be found on the parade's website, all social media channels, and in the windows of downtown businesses."

Entries for the parade are open until November 26th, welcoming all festive participants. A special call goes out to school and community bands to join the celebration. Applications are available at www.TulsaChristmasParade.org.

Paul Ross, Vice-President of American Waste Control, says, "Kenny and I are absolutely thrilled to bring Muriel's beloved character, 'Holly Berry,' to life at the 97th Tulsa Christmas Parade. This collaboration reflects our shared commitment to spreading cheer and creating memorable moments for everyone in Green Country. We extend the invitation for everyone to join us on December 9th for a magical celebration of the holiday season."

As part of the festive experience, a designated food truck area on 6th Street (between Main Street and Boston Avenue) will offer food and beverages to parade-goers. The parade is free and open to everyone, providing a heartwarming experience for families and friends.

Join us for the 97th Tulsa Christmas Parade, proudly presented by American Waste Control, Saturday, December 9th, 2023, at 11am in downtown Tulsa. Have a Holly Berry Christmas!

Eggnog Pajama Jog presented by Tulsa Parks
