The East Texas Cancer Alliance of Hope, located in Lufkin, Texas, is local organization providing resources and helping alleviate the financial burden of cancer for local, eligible patients. Every donation that is raised goes back to helping local people who have been diagnosed with Cancer. The charitable organization understands that a cancer diagnosis can create a significant burden in the lives of not only the patient but on their families as well. The financial strain caused by cancer treatments can impact a patient's emotional and physical health- not allowing the patient to fully recover as they should.

Ashley Berry, Founder & CEO of the East Texas Cancer Alliance of Hope, added "We are profoundly grateful for the generosity displayed by this incredible donation of $8700. This contribution will significantly bolster our efforts in providing critical support, resources, and hope to local individuals and families facing the challenges of cancer. Such acts of kindness empower us to expand our reach and make a tangible impact in the lives of those affected by this disease. We extend our heartfelt thanks to our compassionate donor partners for their invaluable support in our mission to combat cancer and uplift our community."
