artificial intelligence that have become commonplace in landscape photography. The results are a fantastic showcase of not only the photographers involved but also the true wonder of the landscape in a way that people can trust. Every RAW file from submitted photographs making it to the final judging phase was checked for compliance with the competition’s rules.

□ 11,176 photographs were submitted to the competition from 54 countries by 1,023 photographers.

- Five leaders and world-class photographers were chosen as judges including two from the United States, two from Europe, and one from Canada.
- A comprehensive, transparent, and fair judging process was developed and utilized.
- Three distinctive categories were established, including Grand Scenic, Intimate Landscapes, and Abstract & Details.
- A unique “Project” section was created for the competition, through which photographers could submit 6-10 images that relate to one another in some way.
- Seven “Special Awards” were awarded based on sub-themes within the genre of landscape photography, including Black and White, Aerial, Common Places, Water Worlds, Mountains, Environmental, and Nightscape.
- The photographer with the highest-ranked set of images was awarded the Photographer of the Year prize.
- $24,420 in prizes will be distributed to competition winners including $13,500 in cash, FLM Tripods, subscriptions to Nature Photographer’s Network, and over 100 copies of our perennial fine art coffee table book which showcases the tremendous work of the photographers who submitted their images to the competition.
