"I've spent years working in education so young people could see and connect with someone like them, someone who knows all about what they are going through. I imagine what my peers and I could have been if someone had provided mentorship and financial support in the early stages of our lives. There is no reason another generation should be in that position, lacking inspiration, guidance, and resources. I want to be what we needed when we were younger, and I know many like me are willing and able to provide the essential support that helps young people learn, grow, and succeed," says Kevin Benoit, Founder of Parle Endeavors, Inc.

Through Parle Endeavors, Parlé Magazine is excited to support youth as they reach for their goals in the arts, media, journalism, entrepreneurship, or related fields.
