We have partnered with Second Harvest, a renowned food bank, to distribute food to support our local community," said Dan Luesley, President of Woods Air Movement.

"With a donation drop-off point at our facility, we are grateful to welcome contributions from our valued suppliers and customers. Together, we are committed to making a meaningful impact."

Donations will go towards Rutherford County food banks with the goal of helping as many families as possible.

Second Harvest Food Bank of Middle Tennessee has been combating hunger and addressing food insecurity for over 45 years. By distributing food and other necessary products across Middle and West Tennessee, the organization stands as a pillar of support in an area where over 350,000 people face hunger.
