

Up-and-coming comedian and FSU student Nick Pasquale on his pivot from baseball to comedy and learning from Hollywood

DALLAS, TEXAS, UNITED STATES,
November 18, 2023 /

EINPresswire.com/ -- For Weed And Whiskey News host Jerry “J-Man” Joyner, the inaugural Comedy Fantasy Camp in Hollywood, Calif. earlier this fall was both a source of improvisational insight and a wealth of inspiration—not from just the celebrity hosts and special guests, but also from the attendees themselves.

Such inspiration led to a conversation with fellow camp attendee Nick Pasquale in Ep. 67 of the Weed And Whiskey News show and podcast. An up-and-coming performer and student at Florida State University, Pasquale recently made the leap from college baseball to comedy. With just a few months of improv classes under his belt, Pasquale, 18, flew to Hollywood for the October event for the opportunity to learn from legends like Adam Carolla (whose podcast of which Pasquale is already a fan), Jay Leno, and Caroline Rhea.

“I’m still so new to the comedy scene, so I’m willing to try new things and take suggestions from the counselors,” Pasquale says, whose quick-on-his-feet nature has served him well in his baseball career and now, on the improv stage.

Learn more about what’s next for Nick Pasquale in Ep. 67 of W&W News, streaming now on Weed And Whiskey TV. The episode, which also features fellow Comedy Fantasy Camp alumni Laura McKenzie Stanton and Susan Guidi, is also out now on Roku, YouTube, and Spotify.
