EINPresswire.com/ -- Carrying on its legacy of women-centered business magazines that recognize and honor their efforts, CIO Women Magazine has recently published a new series of magazine issues. The publication has long been portraying the inspirational success stories of businesswomen around the world. With a robust portfolio of insightful business magazines, it has solidified its position as a leading digital platform.

Women in leadership roles have been a significant topic of conversation and debate. Historically, women have not had as much representation in managerial positions, but this situation has been evolving in recent years. Many women have climbed the corporate ladder and made significant contributions to the success of their organizations. In line with this, CIO Women Magazine has recently released a new series of magazine issues to recognize and celebrate these dedicated women leaders.

Here are the issues and the featured clients:

1. Top Women Leaders in Real Estate- 2023: Kathy May-Martin (Broker at Coldwell Banker Jim
