The growth of global user generated content platform market is driven by factors such as increase in use of influencer marketing, the rise in demand for authentic content, and uniqueness and cost-effectiveness of user generated content. However, the high requirement for supervision is a major factor that hampers the growth of the market. Moreover, development of AI and machine learning presents new opportunities in the coming years.

The user generated content platform market is segmented on the basis of product type, and end user. Based on product type, the market is segmented into blogs, websites, advertising and promotions, social media, audio and video, and others. On the basis of end user, it is segmented into individual and enterprises. By region, it is analyzed across North America, Europe, Asia-Pacific, and LAMEA.

Based on product type, the audio and video segment held the highest market share in 2022, accounting for around one-third of the global user generated content platform market, due to the popularity of the video and audio-based content on the UGC platforms. However, the social media segment is projected to manifest the highest CAGR of 36.9% from 2023 to 2032 and is estimated to maintain its leadership status throughout the forecast period, due to a rise in the number of social media platforms such as TikTok and Instagram.

Based on end user, the enterprises segment held the highest market share in 2022, accounting for more than two-thirds of the global user generated content platform market and is estimated to maintain its leadership status throughout the forecast period, due to the increase in the user generated content for the promotion and marketing of the products and services. However, the individual segment is projected to manifest the highest CAGR of 34.4% from 2023 to 2032, as UGC platforms are becoming the source of revenue generation for the users.
