Clothing made for both athletic activity as well as casual, everyday wear is included in the athleisure market, a subset of the fashion and apparel sector. The term "athleisure," a combination of the words "athletic" and "leisure," has been more popular over the past ten years as a result of a growing emphasis on health and wellbeing, shifting lifestyle choices, and the blending of exercise and fashion. Fitness enthusiasts, people who are active, customers who are fashion-conscious, and those looking for comfortable, functional apparel for daily activities have all found a home in the athleisure industry. The distinctions between conventional athletics and casual clothing have become less distinct as a result of the Athleisure Market Trends, which has altered not just the garment sector but also how consumers think about fashion and style.

The U.S. Census Bureau estimates that millennials will soon outnumber baby boomers in the country. Similar trends can be seen throughout Asia-Pacific, where millennials make up a bigger proportion of the population than previous age groups, particularly in nations like China, India, and Australia. This group of people has been engaging in a variety of physical activities and has been active and health-conscious. They have had a big impact on how different international sectors have developed in terms of product and service offerings. They constantly have a tendency to test out newly released items to see whether they meet their needs. Millennials are regarded as the top consumers in the global athleisure sector because to their active lifestyles.

Athleisure knockoff businesses have emerged as a result of the high cost and impressive popularity of authentic athleisure brands. In poor nations with price-sensitive consumers, counterfeit brands are typically widespread. This constraint limits the original athleisure brands' sales in certain areas. Since counterfeit goods are typically of poor quality and frequently cause customers to experience inconvenience and safety concerns, consumers tend to have negative impressions of them. One of the main places where the sale of fake brands may be hidden is the online distribution channel. Thus, it is projected that the expansion of the athleisure market would be hampered by the rise of the counterfeit sector.
