EINPresswire.com/ -- Desert Rotor, a U.S.-based designer and manufacturer of ground control systems (GCS) for unmanned vehicles, is debuting three new controller products, the first of which is the COMMAND XD.

The HOTAS (hand on throttle and stick) device, which is used to control unmanned land, sea, and air vehicles and is universal to most radio and autopilot systems, is designed to meet the diverse needs of unmanned vehicle operators, providing enhanced control and precision.

“The COMMAND XD exemplifies our commitment to streamlined solutions, reliability, and innovation. It’s a versatile and user-friendly controller we believe represents a significant leap forward in GCS technology,” said Debin Ray, CEO of Desert Rotor.

The product launch is part of a larger growth agenda TAP Financial Partners is assisting Desert Rotor with as its corporate and investment banking advisor. The Miami-based merchant bank has been positioning the GCS manufacturer to add infrastructure, expand production capabilities, and scale services. “Desert Rotor has a rich history catering to military audiences, and we’re pleased to be having impact for them as they innovate within the unmanned systems industry,” said Bob Press, founder of TAP Financial Partners.

The Command XD is easily integrated into vans, trucks, and mobile command centers. It offers universal compatibility, is user-friendly for drone operators, features multiple display outputs
