

[JLCPCB] Announces Domain Name Change to Elevate Online Presence

HK, CHINA, November 28, 2023

/EINPresswire.com/ -- JLCPCB, a comprehensive electronic/mechanical service provider, is thrilled to unveil a strategic domain name change for its 3D printing and CNC machining business. The decision to establish separate domains for these services aims to enhance customer access, provide a more professional experience, offer personalized information, and elevate user support and interaction. Effective immediately, the 3D Printing and CNC Machining services will transition to a new domain name, marking a commitment to continuous improvement and the delivery of top-notch products and services.

3D printing factory in China

This shift in domain name stems from JLCPCB's unwavering dedication to remaining at the forefront of technological advancements, optimizing user experiences, and streamlining online operations. The new domain name is aligned with the brand identity, encapsulating the essence of the company's vision and values.

Known for its cost-effective services, JLC3DP proudly offers unbeatable pricing for both 3D printing and CNC machining, with 3D printing starting at an incredible $0.30. This attractive pricing significantly reduces barriers, making cutting-edge technology accessible to all, while maintaining an exceptional standard of quality in their CNC services.

The newly introduced domain name, jlc3dp.com, represents a significant milestone for JLCPCB. This change is geared towards providing customers with improved website performance, enhanced security measures, and a more intuitive interface, setting the stage for future growth and expansion plans.

Rest assured, the domain name change will not disrupt the continuity of services or access to accounts. Thorough preparations have been made to ensure a seamless transition, successfully migrating all existing services, data, and user accounts to the new domain. Customers can continue accessing their accounts and enjoying uninterrupted service using their existing login credentials.

JLCPCB expresses gratitude for the continued support as they embark on this exciting new chapter. The company looks forward to the ongoing journey together under the new domain name, <https://jlc3dp.com/>
