annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.7%. Despite challenges posed by the Russia-Ukraine war, disrupting global economic recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic, the market is set to rebound, reaching $1,274.98 billion in 2027, reflecting a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 8.0%.

Pipeline Construction Boosts Market Growth:

An increase in the construction of new gas pipelines is expected to propel the growth of the natural gas distribution market. With a total of 210,400 kilometers (km) of gas pipelines in development globally, as reported in the Global Gas Infrastructure Tracker, the sector is experiencing a 9% increase over the previous year. Noteworthy pipeline developments are witnessed in leading countries such as China, Russia, India, Australia, and the United States, indicating a positive trajectory for market growth.

Alternate Transportation Modes and Robotic Leak Detection Systems:

Companies in the natural gas distribution market are exploring alternate modes of natural gas transportation for the delivery of natural gas through land. In a significant trend, the Indian Railways allowed Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) transportation via its railway network in 2022, providing a more affordable fuel supply to areas lacking pipelines.

Additionally, companies are investing in robotic wireless in-pipe leak detection systems for faster repair of leakages. The A6 OMD robot, developed by SMP Robotics, uses laser beams and GPS technology to detect underground pipeline gas leaks, providing reliable results and reducing the amount of data to be processed in detection to plug gas leakage.
