

Empowering Gardeners and Cultivating Confidence: Kristian's Gardening Group Launches a New Horticultural Community

Kristian Hickson-Booth launches Garden Like A Master for her Gardening Group to provide gardening and empowerment.

UNITED KINGDOM, November 29, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Kristian, a passionate plantsperson and professional horticultural consultant, is thrilled to announce the launch of Kristian's Gardening Group, a community dedicated to bringing the joy of gardening to enthusiasts of all skill levels.

As a result of Kristian's lifelong journey in horticulture and a strong desire to share knowledge, this new venture aims to inspire, educate, and empower gardening enthusiasts, particularly women.

Who I Became from Following a Career in Horticulture

Kristian's journey in horticulture has led to a deep-rooted commitment to empowering fellow gardeners:

"I became passionate about reaching out to women, encouraging, inspiring, and boosting their confidence and self-esteem through gardening," says Kristian. "I'm a plant person who loves nothing more than mentoring gardeners to develop a profound love for plants. Additionally, my entrepreneurial spirit was awakened when I had the privilege of helping an American couple create an English-style garden. Now, as a professional horticultural consultant, I assist people in starting their gardening projects on the right track."

This is My Time and Why.

Kristian's motivation to share her horticultural expertise is driven by the belief that knowledge is a gift meant to be shared:

"As Les Brown once said, there's a wealth of ideas and knowledge in a graveyard from those who took it to the grave with them. I refuse to let my passion, knowledge, and experiences go unshared. After years of searching, I've found my purpose: to share the gift of horticulture with a broader audience. I'm on a mission to help regular gardeners fall in love with their gardens on a whole new level."
