During his tenure in law school, Shaun's dedication led him to significant roles, including working in the Lien Unit for The University of Alabama at Birmingham Hospital. In this capacity, he displayed exceptional prowess by recovering millions of dollars from third parties, showcasing his innate talent for negotiation and diligence. His enthusiasm for justice further prompted him to accept a clerkship in the Domestic Relations Division of the Alabama Tenth Judicial Circuit in Jefferson County, an experience that solidified his commitment to advocating for his clients within the legal system.

As a testament to his skills, Shaun's negotiation acumen earned him recognition from Alexander Shunnarah, Owner, and CEO of Alexander Shunnarah Trial Attorneys. Since 2015, he has been an integral part of the firm, and his dedication led him to serve as Mr. Shunnarah's personal Case Manager for three years prior to passing the Alabama Bar. This period of close collaboration demonstrated Shaun's relentlessness and allowed him to acquire invaluable skills.

In 2023, Shaun took his aspirations to new heights by establishing Shaun Capps Injury Law, where he leads a dedicated team focused on delivering optimal outcomes for their clients. Additionally, he serves as Of Counsel for Alexander Shunnarah Trial Attorneys, a role that enables him to extend his expertise to a broader range of cases.

Amidst his rigorous advocacy, Shaun finds joy in spending quality time with his family. His wife, Olya, and their children, Solomiya and Roman, are the pillars of his life. Faithful members of Christian Life Church in Hoover, Alabama, the Capps family exemplifies their dedication to making a positive impact on the lives of others, especially orphans and widows. A librarian spirit, he willingly shares his success and methods with the legal community. He is a national conference speaker and currently an Adjunct Torts Professor at Trinity Law School in Santa Ana, California.
