

A Triumph of Resilience: Dr. Albert H. Yurvati's Inspiring Story Lights Up Times Square

From surgeon to patient, the journey of Dr. Albert H. Yurvati illuminates the power of love, perseverance, and the inescapable fates.

COOKSTOWN, NEW JERSEY, UNITED STATES, November 30, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Author and emeritus professor Dr. Albert H. Yurvati is set to grace the iconic New York Times Square with a billboard display. The LED billboard, located at 1560 Broadway between 46th and 47th Street, right above the Pelé store, will showcase Dr. Yurvati and introduce his compelling life story, as detailed in his books "Wet My Hands" and "This to Me."

The display promises a captivating glimpse into Dr. Yurvati's journey—from a distinguished cardiothoracic surgeon of international acclaim to a caregiver for his soulmate, Sharon, who suffered a stroke, and finally to a patient himself, diagnosed with the incurable multiple myeloma.

"Wet My Hands," the first of his memoirs, narrates the unexpected twists and turns of life, from a career pinnacle to a cancer diagnosis, all woven together with humor, history, and passion. The subsequent book, "This to Me," delves deeper into the fates' influence on his life, offering a continuation of resilience, humor, and passion.

In the heart of Times Square, Dr. Yurvati's story will serve as a beacon of hope, illustrating the triumph of the human spirit over adversity. The billboard is not just a display of his books but a testament to the enduring power of love, perseverance, and the indomitable spirit that defines his remarkable journey.

Don't miss the chance to witness this inspiring display at Times Square, a celebration of life, love, and the unwavering human spirit. Dr. Albert H. Yurvati's story, lit up in lights, is a testament to the triumph of resilience.
