Market Driver: Surge in Charitable Contributions

A pivotal driver propelling the trust and foundations market is the notable surge in charitable contributions by individuals, families, and personal foundations. The increase in philanthropy reflects a societal willingness to support those in need during challenging times. According to statistics from the National Philanthropic Trust (NPT), approximately 64% of high-net-worth households actively contribute to charity. In 2022, the Giving USA report highlighted a substantial $105.21 billion increase in foundation donations, marking a 2.5% rise from 2021. This upswing in charitable acts significantly fuels the growth of the trust and foundations market.

Emerging Trend: Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) Initiatives Boost Funding

An emerging trend shaping the market is the collection of funds from generous individuals and companies, often as part of their Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) activities. Noteworthy examples include organizations like Help Age India, a non-profit dedicated to assisting senior citizens lacking adequate support. Through CSR-driven initiatives, such organizations advocate for essential needs, including quality medical services and action against elder abuse. Help Age India's expansive healthcare program, featuring cataract surgeries for the elderly across India, exemplifies the impactful role of CSR-driven funds in fostering positive social change.
