The Union Bank Co. recognizes the critical importance of addressing food insecurity among children. The Children's Hunger Alliance is a nonprofit organization dedicated to ensuring that every child in Ohio has access to nutritious meals, snacks, and education on healthy eating habits.

Through this donation, The Union Bank Co. aims to make a positive impact on the lives of children facing hunger in our community. In the state of Ohio there are over 300,000 children who do not know where their next meal is coming from. The funds will directly support the Children's Hunger Alliance's programs, which include providing meals and snacks to children in schools, childcare centers, and after-school programs, as well as offering nutrition education to help children develop healthy eating habits.

“We are thankful for partners like Union Bank who help support our mission of providing food to children who do not consistently have access to it,” CEO & President of the Children's Hunger Alliance Michelle M. Brown said. “Together, we are making a difference in the lives of children in our community.”

Additionally, the bank team donated $500 to the Brown Bag Food Project of Northwest Ohio. The Brown Bag Food Project provides individuals with a supply of food to help meet their immediate food needs along with a resource guide to help connect people to additional community resources for long term support. The Union Bank Co. feels it is essential to support hunger-driven nonprofits year-round, but especially when holidays like Thanksgiving are around the corner, so that anyone can enjoy a meal with the ones they love.
