

Apocalyptic Allegory Called an 'Action-Fraught Vision Grounded in Biblical Prophecy'

The Coming is the powerful conclusion to the story that began in Heeren's previous book, Year of Our Lord.

ORLANDO, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES, December 8, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In The Coming: Footpath to the End of the Age, Bible scholar David S. Heeren weaves an inspiring story of a preacher and his wife who make the long trek from Florida to New York to confront the new commander in chief.

Pastor Charles Morgen, after serving one term as president of the United States, is troubled by the evil brewing in the White House under a menacing new president who at times seems not even human. Morgen decides to confront the man, who goes by the moniker President Adam, in New York City, where anti-Christian forces working for the president have established a home base for turning the U.S.A. into an impoverished socialist land. Morgen and his wife embark on the overwhelming journey — spanning more than a thousand miles — which must be made on foot because the Morgens' car is recognizable to thugs working for the new president.

“Half of the book is about the Morgens' adventures while making the long walk,” Heeren explained. “The conclusion of the book features a scene in which Morgen faces the new president head-on. By this time, it has become clear that persecution of the Morgens and other Christians is high on the list of plans for the new administration.”

The Coming's epic conclusion features scenes that might have been lifted directly from the book of Revelation.

The US Review of Books calls The Coming an “eerie yet inspiring tale. ... The situations in which the Morgens become mired are sometimes horrific, but their courage is sustained by uplifting miraculous incidents. Their positive roles and the perfidies of the book's villain are imaginatively drawn by Heeren, whose latest offering is sure to attract readers across a broad spectrum to this gripping, action-fraught vision grounded in biblical prophecy.”
