regular press conference, Mexican President Andrés Manuel López Obrador emphasized the significance of the donation that the organizers of the match between FC Barcelona and Club América will make at the Cotton Bowl.

President of Mexico reminded the media that a part of the ticket sales from this match will be donated to the victims of Hurricane "Otis" in the beloved port of Acapulco, and invited everyone to join this cause.

"It's great that people and organizations are helping, cooperating, and showing solidarity with humanism. The support being given to Acapulco has been widely recognized from the beginning. Many people have provided their support, some anonymously and personally, but there have been many donations," stated Andrés Manuel López Obrador. The match is organized by Soccer Media Solutions, a leading sports marketing company, and event organizer for top-level sporting events.

Jose Eshkenazi Smeke, CEO of Soccer Media Solutions, commented: "As always, when it comes to support, we expect a great response from Mexican fans. In addition, to encourage high participation, tickets can be purchased starting from USD $79 on the Fair Park Tix and Ticketón platforms."

Furthermore, in support of the fans, a family pack was announced this weekend: 4 tickets for the price of 3. One of the conference attendees mentioned, "Not only will you have an unforgettable experience watching your favorite players and two world-class teams, but you also have the opportunity to support our compatriots by buying a ticket."

Both teams will have all their available players for this match on December 21st, so the spectacle is guaranteed. Robert Lewandowski, Gavi, João Félix, and Pedri will be among the stars of this team.
