EINPresswire.com/ -- The world is changing and families are taking advantage of remote work opportunities to enrich their lives and increase precious family time. Noma Collective has now created a unique travel offering, specifically designed for remote working parents seeking harmony between magical childhood experiences and meaningful career development. Noma Family ensures that each family member's need is met during office hours and every special moment can be shared with partners and children in downtime.

Noma Collective invites families to experience three life-affirming weeks in Belize, with a summer vacation to delight every member of the family through work, play, wellness, indulgence, tranquillity and adventure. Remote working parents will have all the flexibility needed to stay connected on their own terms enabled alongside a reinvention of a daily 'kids' club, created by qualified Montessori teachers. Children are offered a wide range of activities, whilst immersed in nature, sparking their creativity. There's also delicious, nutritious food, excursions, adventures, and sports or just beach time to unwind together as a family.
