

DENVER PREP SUPER LEAGUE TEAM, PURCHASED BY UPSWING FOUNDATION, REVEALS DENVER TEAM NAME

Former NFL Players Will Lead the Staff of the Newly Named Denver-based Franchise, and Will Be Announced in Coming Months

DENVER, COLORADO, UNITED STATES, December 18, 2023 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Denver's Prep Super League \(PSL\) team, owned by UPSWING Foundation and part of an elite, 11-on-11, spring football league for top high school players, announced today the name of their Denver-based franchise, the Mile High Prep. The newly named team will compete as one of twelve PSL market teams. Kicking off in April 2024, the PSL features top-rated college football prospects, collegiate playing rules, and games streamed in real-time.

PSL is the first of its kind and only nationwide 11-on-11, league designed to showcase the very best rising football stars within a six-week spring season; enabling top athletes to receive significant exposure on a national platform. Following NCAA rules, NFL-level safety protocols, and integrating cutting-edge technology and real-time streaming capabilities, the PSL represents an experience unlike anything that has come before it. In order to be eligible for participation in PSL, players must be currently enrolled in an accredited middle or high school curriculum and reside in one of the league's twelve designated markets. Players interested in playing for the Denver's Mile High Prep team can apply by visiting www.milehighprep.com.

"Colorado boasts several national recruits who I believe are worthy of a 4-star rating and strong consideration from the Power 5 schools," said Brian Woods, Founder & CEO of Prep Super League. "PSL will provide significant exposure to these players and others who are undervalued."

The Denver area boasts top prospects from the '25 and '26 classes respectively:

QB Bekkem Kritza (Fairview High School), committed to Penn State

QB Austin Modrzewski (Mountain Vista High School) offer from Kentucky

TE Camden Jenson (Heritage High School) offers from Washington and Iowa State

LB Jaxon Pyatt (Arvada West High School) offers from Ole Miss and Syracuse

Mile High Prep is owned by UPSWING Foundation, a Colorado nonprofit focused on connecting people and catapulting the dreams of young athletes. With support for over 1,200 athletes already in motion, UPSWING's active projects include the development of an "Alpha" Facility for Performance and Recovery (2024) and the UPSWING Dreamplex (2026).
