Review excerpt Walkden Entertainment

Overall, The Last Video Store delivers an experience that is different, fresh, fun, and unique. I can't say I've ever seen a romance unfold within a video store, and it's evident that the Director, Brian Vining, has a passion for all things relating to films. The results here are impressive based on the budget and location alone. It's a fun film that left me smiling due to its touching romance and witty randomness throughout, mainly thanks to Stuart Lumsden, who injects energy whenever he appears on-screen. Ultimately, we need more films like this in Australia- highly different films with a big heart behind the camera. Director and writer Brian Vining has impressed me with this solid directorial debut.
