EINPresswire.com/ -- Same-day dental crowns, also known as CEREC crowns, have revolutionized the traditional process of getting a dental crown.

In the past, patients would need to endure multiple appointments and wear temporary crowns while waiting for the permanent one to be fabricated in an off-site dental lab. With same-day crowns, like those offered by The Gilbert Dentist in Gilbert, Arizona, this tedious process is streamlined into a single visit, offering convenience and efficiency.

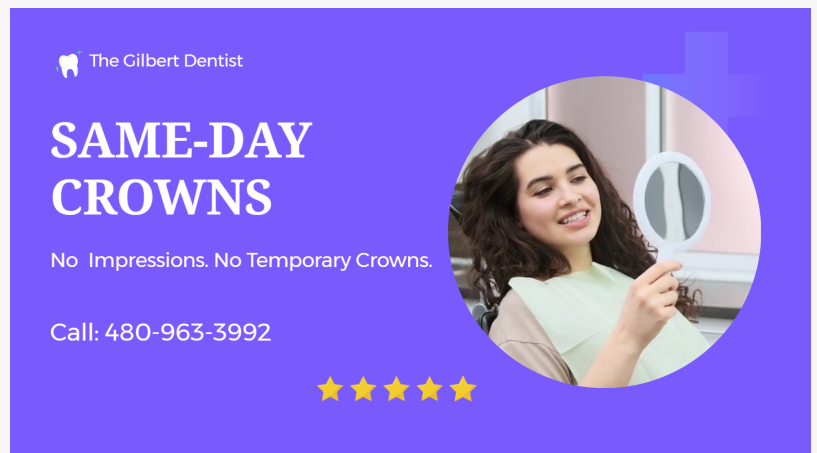

The process begins with digital impressions of the patient's teeth using advanced CAD/CAM (computer-aided design and computer-aided manufacturing) technology.

This eliminates the need for messy traditional impressions and provides highly accurate 3D images of the teeth. The dentist then uses these images to design a custom crown that matches the natural teeth' shape, size, and color.

Once the design is complete, the CEREC milling machine carves the crown from a solid ceramic or composite material block. This process takes only a matter of minutes, allowing patients to witness their crowns being created in real-time. The material used is durable and closely resembles the strength and aesthetics of natural teeth.

After milling, the dentist makes final adjustments to the crown to ensure a precise fit and bite. The crown is then polished and bonded to the tooth using dental cement. Patients can leave the dental office on the same day with a fully functional and aesthetically pleasing crown without needing a temporary restoration.
