and uncommon rhinoplasty problems as well as the development of individualized operative plans for various rhinoplasty deformities. This year's program will cover structural and preservation rhinoplasty, tip shaping finesse, advanced septal surgery, dorsum finesse, revision rhinoplasty, and rhinoplasty variations. A special keynote lecture will also be held to honor the late founder of the Dallas Rhinoplasty, Dr. Jack P. Gunter.

Developed for rhinoplasty surgeons desiring to improve their results with the latest innovations and techniques in rhinoplasty the Dallas Rhinoplasty Meeting offers the opportunity to apply learned techniques in the hands-on cadaver lab with rhinoplasty experts. Known to be one of the largest cadaver dissection workshops, this unique format and anatomy lab have been a hallmark and key component of this annual meeting. This year's emphasis will continue to expand upon the technical refinements in preservation rhinoplasty, finesse and facial harmony, and consistency of outcomes in rhinoplasty.

“The Dallas Rhinoplasty Meeting is one of the most prolific and impactful educational experiences for surgeons studying rhinoplasty. Every plastic surgeon and otolaryngologist with any interest in this difficult procedure should consider attending this unique meeting.” -Dr. Rod J.

Dallas Rhinoplasty Meeting has become a key international event for surgeons worldwide as a unique educational venue for sharing the latest techniques and advancements in rhinoplasty. The meeting has brought about crucial shifts in the rhinoplasty field such as the widespread adoption of the "open approach," now considered the primary method for performing rhinoplasty surgery today and has also inspired the textbook, "Dallas Rhinoplasty: Nasal Surgery by the Masters" now in its 3rd edition, edited by Drs. Rohrich, Adams, and Ahmad, which is used as the rhinoplasty textbook in plastic surgery educational programs all over the world.

Rodney James Rohrich, MD FACS

"The Dallas Rhinoplasty Meeting is one of the most prolific and impactful educational experiences for surgeons studying rhinoplasty," says Dr. Rohrich. "Every plastic surgeon and otolaryngologist with any interest in this difficult procedure should consider attending this unique meeting."

Dr. Rohrich believes that specialized, hands-on educational symposia are a key component in continuing medical education for all surgeons. The Dallas Rhinoplasty Meeting not only provides access to cutting edge information and advances that are on the forefront of this specialized area of plastic surgery, it is taught in the truly unique style of teaching that was pioneered by Dr. Rohrich himself.

"Rhinoplasty remains one the most difficult surgical procedures in all of plastic surgery," says Dr. Rohrich. "It takes years to master the great finesse required to provide the best, optimal, long-term results safely and consistently."

Dallas Rhinoplasty Meeting is designed for and limited to plastic surgeons, facial plastic surgeons, otolaryngologists, oculoplastic surgeons, dermatologists, and residents in the above specialties. Registration is limited.
