Durham, UK – A significant initiative is being undertaken by Venture Waste, a waste management company based in the UK. Managing Director, Patrick Stephens, is set to embark on an inspiring journey to Everest Base Camp in October 2024. The objective of this expedition is to raise awareness and gather funds for the Solan Connor Fawcett Family Cancer Trust.

A Journey of Hope and Endurance

The journey of Patrick Stephens to Everest Base Camp is a representation of the resilience and determination that is often seen in the lives of cancer patients and their families. It also highlights the societal contribution and compassionate leadership of the company.

Skyblue Adventures: Guiding the Journey

Skyblue Adventures has meticulously planned the trek, which will feature the stunning landscapes of the Khumbu region, Sherpa communities, and iconic landmarks. This challenging route is a testament to the dedication behind the fundraising effort.

Deep Dive into the Solan Connor Fawcett Family Cancer Trust's Mission

The Solan Connor Fawcett Family Cancer Trust, established in 2015 by Mark Solan, provides a variety of services, including holistic therapies, beauty room and wig services, counselling, financial aid, and support hub activities. These services are integral in aiding individuals and families affected by cancer.

The Impact of Support

Since its inception, the Trust has been a beacon of hope, reaching out to thousands. Contributions to this cause are pivotal in ensuring the continuation of these essential services, directly impacting lives affected by cancer.

Christmas Appeal: A Season of Giving

The approaching Christmas season is an ideal time for generosity. Donations to this cause will be instrumental in sustaining the Trust's impactful work.

I am so excited to be able to help Mark and the team at the Solan Connor Fawcett Trust with this challenge, they do fantastic work and make a huge impact to the lives of those affected by cancer.”
