Gibson Dunn's generous donation contributes significantly to the educational resources available to students at HBCUs. By providing access to diverse perspectives and knowledge, this gift ensures that students will have more necessary tools to thrive in their academic and professional pursuits.

“

This donation represents an investment in the future success of students at HBCUs”

Laurie Robinson Haden

"This donation represents an investment in the future success of students at HBCUs," shares Robinson Haden. "I believe in the power of education and empowerment. My hope is that this book serves as a catalyst, inspiring students to excel in their chosen paths and make impactful contributions to their communities."

Since the founding of the first HBCU over 187 years ago, HBCUs have played a critical role in shaping the experiences of millions of graduates and society in general. "We are pleased to help contribute to the future success of HBCU students," says Gibson Dunn partner and Chief Diversity Officer Zakiyyah Salim-Williams. "We know that Laurie's book will provide students with a blueprint for their future success in the law and beyond." Gibson Dunn is honored to donate the books on behalf of its partners, associates, and professional staff members who hail from esteemed HBCUs, including Howard, Spelman, and Morehouse.

The essence of empowerment, motivation, and inspiration embedded within It's Time to Shine aligns perfectly with the aspirations of HBCU students. By supporting students with this invaluable resource, Gibson Dunn's donation aims to foster a sense of determination and commitment, encouraging them to strive for excellence and create positive change in their communities.
