Dr. J, known for his distinct blend of Southern hip-hop and diverse influences, has been diligently working towards this moment. His latest release is a testament to the countless hours spent honing his craft and the challenges overcome on the road to recognition. This Texan artist has traveled a long and arduous path, fueled by unwavering ambition and a deep passion for his art.

The collaboration with Houston's own Paul Wall and the ever-adaptable Baby Bash adds a layer of excitement to "Lately," promising listeners a musical journey that reflects the hard work and perseverance that brought Dr. J to this point. The single is a result of a labor of love, and the chemistry between the artists is palpable, weaving a rich narrative that resonates with the shared experiences of those who have faced trials and triumphs in the pursuit of their dreams.

Taking to social media, Just Underestimated expressed his gratitude for the support he has received and hinted at the nostalgic elements embedded within "Lately." His call to fans to recognize the old songs he has flipped speaks to a deep connection with the roots of the genre, showcasing a reverence for the musical history that has influenced his own unique style.

In a heartfelt acknowledgment, Dr. J thanked Bruce Bang, the creative force behind the mixing board. This shoutout underscores the importance of collaboration and the behind-the-scenes efforts that often go unnoticed. Bruce Bang's contribution highlights the synergy between the artist and the producer, a partnership that has played a pivotal role in bringing "Lately" to life.

Dr. J's journey has been one marked by resilience, determination, and an unyielding commitment to his craft. The Texan rapper's rise to prominence is a testament to the sacrifices made along the way and the passion that has fueled his creative endeavors. "Lately" not only represents a musical milestone but also a culmination of years of hard work and dedication.
