21 March 2023: Honeywell announced its partnership with Watershed Organization Trust (WOTR) which focuses on replenishing rural water bodies, increasing the water table in the target areas and promoting livelihood opportunities for farmers and women. Honeywell, through the Honeywell Hometown Solutions India Foundation (HHSIF) will extend financial and volunteering support to WOTR through the course of the partnership.

Regional Analysis:

The region-wise coverage of the market is mentioned in the report, mainly focusing on the regions:

Asia Pacific leads the worldwide disposable and reusable mask market, which is expected to grow at a rate of around 37% over the course of the forecast period. The existence of a substantial population base benefits the region's manufacturers, particularly in countries like China and India. The region is seeing significant expansion in the number of hospitals and healthcare institutions. The region's growing industrial sector and government laws and regulations protecting workers' health are the key factors expected to fuel market expansion. Furthermore, it is projected that growing urbanisation and disposable income in China and India would drive up demand for the product in the upcoming years.

Between 2023 and 2030, the North American disposable and reusable mask market is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 25%. The demand for the product in this area is rising due to the increase in pollution levels, which are caused by the emission of dangerous gases into the environment. The working class's strong purchasing power and the government's low-cost mask programme are two more important reasons propelling the industry in North America. A further factor in the expansion of the area is the overall rise in public awareness of health and personal cleanliness.
