The audiobook climbed to the #1 spot on Amazon for teen coming-of-age audiobooks on its first day of release.

Van Der Beek, best known for his role as Dawson on the hit TV series Dawson's Creek, signed onto the project as executive producer and narrator after resonating with the book.

"I love doing audiobooks, but hadn't done one in a while. This one caught me. I hope it moves listeners as much as it moved me to record it."

- James Van Der Beek, Executive Producer and Narrator

Craig Cunningham is the story's author, while Kent Studio produced the audiobook.

"I hope this story encourages readers to make the most of this gift called life. Having James Van Der Beek on board to narrate brings it to a whole new level, and I can't wait to share it with the world. "

-Craig Cunningham, Author

"I'm grateful James took a chance on a relatively unknown author and new indie studio. This story has inspired me to live with beauty, courage, and wonder and I hope it does the same for all who listen to it."

Book Description:

Senior year was supposed to be the time of Colt's life, but when he meets Lucas Oliver, a college-aged vagabond with a mysterious past, Colt's life takes an unexpected turn.

Lucas mentors Colt and a group of eleven other senior guys, guiding them through a series of rites of passage over the course of the year. They are challenged by the power of sacred questions, courageous acts, and vulnerable authenticity, but the question remains: can Lucas be trusted with his unorthodox ideas about God, life, and death? Along the way, Colt's feelings for Noa—a "band dork" he has known for years, deepen as he falls for her bright green eyes and charming honesty.

As Colt and the group of young men explore the wonders, romance, and adventures of their senior year, they are confronted with an event that challenges everything they hold true.
