Regional Outlook of Global Facility Management

In the worldwide facility management market in 2022, North America held the greatest market share of 40%. This is because businesses in nations like the United States and Canada are increasingly implementing IoT and AI in their facilities management systems. Moreover, growing strategic efforts adopted by significant market players are anticipated to fuel this region's market revenue growth throughout the projection year. For example, The EY company stated on June 21, 2022, that it will be working with Planon, a global leader in smart sustainable building management systems, to help businesses optimise their workplace and real estate strategies in order to achieve sustainability, long-term value, and growth. Offering choices to clients, the EY-Planon Alliance prioritises innovative technologies and execution performance for a seamless experience to meet their real estate and digital workplace needs. With actionable and meaningful insights from the EY organization combined with Planon's Integrated Workplace Management Solution (IWMS) and Internet of things (IoT) platform, this alliance supports client efforts to navigate the increasingly complex digital workplace, smart building, and workplace experience arena.
