Factuality Pride goes beyond traditional educational approaches, offering an innovative and immersive experience that delves into the fact based limitations impacting the LGBTQ+ community. This facilitated dialogue, crash course, and interactive experience equips program attendees with a nuanced understanding of the intersecting factors that compound inequality. "The program's success lies not just in its capacity to gamify fact-based inequities, delicately, but also in its proven ability to expand perspectives, within minutes," says Founder,

Natalie Gillard. "By addressing fact based realities head-on, Factuality Pride aims to be a catalyst for transformative change in LGBTQ+ education and awareness."

FACTUALITY is a fact based facilitated dialogue, crash course, and interactive experience that simulates structural inequality. Participants assume the identities of a diverse group of characters, encountering a series of fact based limitations based on the intersection of their character's race, class, gender, faith, sexual orientation, ability, and age.

FACTUALITY Pride joins a suite of eight social equity programs founded by Natalie Gillard, in 2016.
