the E-learning program empowering women with the skills and confidence needed to gain financial freedom, has today announced that it updated its course, website, and platform to better serve the needs of women located all around the world. FemmeFunds' comprehensive E-learning program teaches women of all ages and backgrounds how to manage their money, invest in the stock market, and navigate the world of personal finance.

In response to the growing demand for accessible financial education tailored to women, FemmeFunds offers an even more engaging and user-friendly experience. The updated curriculum incorporates the latest insights, strategies, and industry best practices to empower women to take control of their financial futures. The program's course includes nine chapters and she offers 1-on-1 or group coaching sessions. Both are structured to help women strengthen their money mindset while learning how to invest in the stock market over eight weeks of courses.

"I'm thrilled to bring the enhanced FemmeFunds E-learning course and website to women worldwide," said Elizabeth Schwartz, Founder of FemmeFunds. "These updates reflect our commitment to providing accessible, relevant, and impactful resources that enable women to build a strong financial foundation and confidently engage in the world of investing."

Elizabeth established the program to advocate for financial empowerment among women. Through her transformative moments, such as navigating her family being affected by a Ponzi scheme, managing student loans, experiencing financial infidelity in a relationship, and grappling with debt, she was compelled to find solutions.

FemmeFunds invites women of all backgrounds to explore the enhanced E-learning course and website, fostering a community where financial knowledge is shared and women are equipped to achieve their financial goals. To learn more about FemmeFunds and its offerings, please visit www.femmefunds.com and follow on Instagram.
