INTERNATIONAL 17th Annual
BIOMASS
CONFERENCE & EXPO
Mar. 4-6, 2024
RICHMOND, VA

“We are excited to bring the International Biomass Conference & Expo to Richmond, Virginia,” said John Nelson, vice president of operations, marketing & sales for Biomass Magazine. “There are many biomass power facilities, pellet mill plants and RNG projects near or within driving distance of Richmond. The activity within the industry is very abundant within the region.”

Two annual industry awards will also be given out during the general session: the Groundbreaker of the Year Award and the Excellence in Bioenergy Award. These awards are designed to help recognize those individuals and companies who have contributed and helped build the bioenergy industry. Nominations for both awards can be submitted here by January 26.

Concurrent sessions will be running March 4–6 at the show. Speakers will discuss a variety of topics in the biomass industry under the following categories:

- Pellets & Densified Biomass
- Biomass Power & Thermal
- Biogas & Renewable Natural Gas (RNG)
- Advanced Biofuels & Biobased Chemicals
- Sustainable Aviation Fuel (SAF)

Tim Portz, program developer for BBI International, expressed enthusiasm about the substantial number of abstract submissions received. He stated, “the agenda for the International Biomass Conference & Expo is comprehensive, diverse, and covers a wide range of topics related to biomass-to-energy strategies.”
