Devour - Feeding the Digital Generation

Beyond his media ventures, Barron is also the founder of Rever Networks, Inc., a company dedicated to bridging the gap between blockchain advancements and established brands. He is the creator of the Market Sentiment Index, a powerful sentiment analysis tool used by leading players in blockchain, crypto, gaming, and NFTs.

"We are thrilled to welcome Paul Barron to our team of advisors," said Shelly Rupel, CEO of Devour. "His deep understanding of hospitality, gaming, and web3 perfectly aligns with Devour's mission to redefine Gen Z experiences. Paul's expertise of gaming trends, and his grasp of web3's potential are invaluable assets as we shape the future of hospitality."

Barron's expertise extends beyond technology. He is a recognized thought leader in new media and consumer science, having received numerous awards and honors for his work. He has been featured in prominent publications and media outlets, and his advisory and consulting services are sought after by businesses across various sectors seeking to navigate the ever-evolving tech landscape, integrate blockchain solutions, and prepare for the future of Web3.

"Devour's audacious vision of gamifying food and building communities through tokenized experiences is like rocket fuel for Gen Z engagement," said Barron. "My expertise in bridging tech and consumer trends is a perfect match for their ambitious mission to meet Gen Z where they live, through tokenized campaigns and food-fueled gaming experiences"

Barron's appointment as advisor underscores Devour's commitment to building a best-in-class advisory board with the experience and vision to shape the future of web3. His diverse skill set and passion for technology will undoubtedly contribute to Devour's continued success.
