million followers. While the 'stud of the sea' never even saw the ocean until he moved to the Turks & Caicos at the age of 35, he's spent the past three decades circling the globe as a mega yacht captain known for his witty one-liners and no-nonsense attitude. Whether he's appearing before Andy Cohen on "Watch What Happens Live" or lawmakers on Capitol Hill, Captain Lee always brings his signature swagger.

"JM Family has enjoyed a long-term community partnership with the Salvation Army of Broward and has supported many of their programs, not only financially, but through board participation and our associate volunteer program," said Pete Sudler, vice president, JM Family Enterprises, and an advisory board member for The Salvation Army of Broward County. "Supporting efforts to ensure Plymouth Colony has the appropriate funding to continue helping families toward self-sufficiency and permanent housing opportunities aligns perfectly with JM Family's charitable giving initiatives."

The Salvation Army of Broward County engages in year-round critical operations, such as multiple shelters and housing programs to aid those experiencing homelessness; weekly food pantry distributions; daily soup kitchen; annual Angel Tree toy distribution program bringing joy to local families during the holidays, and others. To support these efforts fundraising activities like the seasonal Red Kettle bell ringing campaign and this year's new Red Shield Regatta offer the community the chance to invest for long-term impact. All funds raised directly assist the most disadvantaged in Broward County.
