

Diamond Exchange Houston Offers Insight on Current Diamond Market Trends as Valentine's Day Approaches

HOUSTON, TEXAS, UNITED STATES, January 31, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In light of the upcoming Valentine's Day, Diamond Exchange Houston is informing consumers that now is the prime opportunity for individuals to sell their diamond jewelry in Houston. This announcement comes as an important market advisory, given the notable impact of the rising popularity of lab-grown diamonds on the natural diamond market.

"The true worth of a diamond isn't just in its sparkle, but also in its timely evaluation," says Gili Mor, the esteemed diamond buyer at Diamond Exchange Houston. "With Valentine's Day around the corner, sentimentality and practicality converge, making it a poignant time to reassess the value of jewelry that may hold memories of the past."

"For example, Mor continues," "in light of the current market trends where natural diamonds have seen a depreciation in value - a $5000 diamond in 2021 may now be valued at $3500 - we are advising consumers that now may be the best time to sell unwanted diamonds before they continue to be worth less over time."
