

AlmaLinux OS Foundation Announces Two New Board Members

FORT MYERS, FLA., USA, February 5, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The AlmaLinux OS Foundation, a nonprofit that stewards the community-owned and governed open source CentOS Linux replacement AlmaLinux, today announced that Alejandro (Alex)

Iribarren and 田村 (Jun Yoshida) are the newest members of the organization's board, following a recent election aimed at including a greater variety of voices that help drive the organization's future.

The official announcement, including summaries of the two new board members' experience, was posted on December 19, 2023, following the conclusion of the 2023 election. They will both hold their seats for 3 years. Iribarren, a systems engineer at CERN, and Yoshida, who drives the development of MIRACLE LINUX and open source adoption at Cybertrust Japan, and add greater diversity to the AlmaLinux board, bringing new sections of AlmaLinux OS users to the group and helping to ensure the community's leadership moves the project forward with everyone in mind.

"Jun and Alex bring entirely new sections of AlmaLinux OS users to the board, ensuring that our leadership continues to move the project forward with everyone in mind," said Benny Vasquez, chair of the AlmaLinux OS Foundation. "While this election didn't involve much contention, we still are emboldened by the participation of our members."
