European Flooring's exclusivity as a vendor of Legno Bastone, a family-run European hardwood company with over five generations of expertise, truly sets them apart. Sourced from old-growth trees and carefully preserved, each Legno Bastone plank exudes durability, resilience, and timeless elegance. Both European Flooring and Legno Bastone are dedicated to sustainable production, working meticulously to replace and preserve trees in the forests in which they operate.

European Flooring seamlessly integrates old-world refinement with contemporary innovation. All of their planks are enhanced with special finishes and treatments to optimize the wood's durability, longevity, and beauty. Each plank is infused with the company's signature marine-grade core for optimal protection against moisture and humidity. This feature ensures the hardwood maintains its beautiful appearance in South Florida's tropical climate.

To further fortify their planks, European Flooring uses a UV-cured, hard-wax oil protective finish. This all-natural solution is free from harmful VOCs (volatile organic compounds) to provide clients with high levels of personal and environmental safety. These special features help the company stay true to its commitment to quality, longevity, and expert craftsmanship, resulting in planks that stay strong and appealing for decades.

While the quality of Legno Bastone hardwood is evident even through digital representations, the true beauty of each plank comes to life in European Flooring's Fort Lauderdale gallery. More than just a showroom, European Flooring has a bona fide gallery that offers visual stimulation and artistry.

Physical visits to the Fort Lauderdale gallery go beyond providing a mere glimpse of the end result; they provide an opportunity to streamline the entire design process. European Flooring's dedicated team guides clients through collections, explains product details, and assists with installation setups. European Flooring is proud to offer end-to-end service that facilitates the building or renovation process, including installations performed by their in-house Legno Bastone-trained team - one of the only two in the world.

"I highly recommend European Flooring of Fort Lauderdale for all your flooring needs. Their use of European white oak, combined with the expertise of their installers, results in an exceptional finished product. With their unparalleled craftsmanship and unwavering commitment to customer satisfaction, European Flooring has truly set the bar high in the flooring industry," expressed Shane Jacobs, European Flooring client.
