“Our ambition is to cultivate designer partnerships and deepen ties with local professionals and enthusiasts alike, as we champion the spirit of innovation that defines Brooklyn. The gallery stands as a reflection of NYC, aiming to project the same vibe that makes this city so endlessly captivating,” says Alireza Yavari, co-founder and chief brand officer at SENTIENT.

SENTIENT employs skilled in-house experts and collaborates with third-party designers to craft custom furniture pieces, offering limitless personalization possibilities. The company’s luxury products span many categories, highlighting the embrace of functionality and fine art. SENTIENT is renowned for its rich catalog, from residential to commercial furniture, as well as architectural millwork. The furniture brand specializes in upholstered pieces, solid wood creations, all-weather outdoor furnishings and innovative concept items that merge superior materials to make a strong statement.

"Our designer furniture gallery presents contemporary art pieces as part of our premium collection, alongside distinctive designs born from past collaborations. These models are customizable, accepting endless adjustments to the initial design. We aim to forge artistic furniture that blends unique styles with rich sentimental significance," says Mr. Yavari.

SENTIENT ensures all its materials meet certification standards, closing the gap between opulent décor and environmentally conscious furniture. Unlike past designs that overlooked sustainable practices or conscious consumerism, the current trend leans significantly towards green manufacturing and eco-friendly appeal. Property owners, particularly those managing venues, are now more aware of resource conservation, advocating for renewable materials and ethical production techniques. The open gallery space is another influence in this direction, aiming to further validate this sustainable movement.
