

Global Backer Board Market to Reach US$ 3,803.85 Million by 2031, Flourishing at a CAGR of 9.6% | Astute Analytica

The market's substantial growth can be attributed to several key factors. Primarily, the explosion in construction activities across the globe has served as a significant catalyst. An increasing demand for water-resistant building materials, coupled with the rising trend of Do-It-Yourself (DIY) home improvements, has further propelled the market forward. Backer boards, known for their moisture-resistant and heat-insulating properties, have become indispensable in tile installations, thereby enhancing their demand and application in the construction industry.

Driving forces behind this exceptional growth include rapid urbanization and a burgeoning global population, which have led to increased construction of residential and commercial buildings. The inherent properties of backer boards, which make them an ideal choice for such constructions, have significantly contributed to the market's expansion.
