Gina Jones' life has been a symphony of trials and triumphs, underscored by her enduring passion for writing, singing, and performing music. From a tender age of 9, Gina graced the stage, singing and playing bass in her family's band, the Ozark Rhythm Aires. Despite her young years, her talent shone brightly, captivating audiences at fairs, festivals, and even Branson, Missouri.

Yet, Gina's journey was beset by unimaginable challenges, including abuse, medical crises, and encounters with death. Her resilience, however, emerged as a beacon of hope when she found solace in her faith. Overcoming adversity, Gina transformed her narrative from victim to victor, embodying true beauty and reclaiming her identity.

Now a best-selling author with her book Madame of Music Row, Gina's story resonates deeply with audiences worldwide. Accompanied by songs she composed for each chapter, her journey becomes a melodic symphony of resilience and redemption.

Despite the tragedies she endured, Gina radiates joy and purpose, sharing her transformative story on college campuses, in bookstores, and listening rooms, wherever hearts yearn for inspiration.
