UNITED STATES, February 14, 2024

/EINPresswire.com/ -- TenrecX, a new technology advisory and consulting firm, enters today's marketplace with the goal of simplifying the selection and implementation of technology solutions from the world's leading providers.

TenrecX, LLC

Born from conversations among friends and long-time colleagues, TenrecX is committed to addressing the unique technology needs of each client. With access to an extensive network of over 400 premier solution providers, TenrecX is committed to simplify the way technology advisors work, offering scalable solutions to both public and private organizations through both traditional purchasing and emerging subscription models.

We believe we've created something special and unique, something that has significant relevance to the technology and channel landscape at the moment”

Darron Gross

TenrecX Xpert Advisors offer guidance in a range of areas, including datacenter and cloud, cybersecurity, managed services, network, and application services, ensuring clients select the right solution. As trusted partners, we go beyond transactional interactions to support and guide clients towards achieving their technology goals.
