The umbrella market has faced loss in production due to the lockdown scenario as many manufacturing units had to shut down and loss of labor has reduced the output, which is expected to affect the profit of industries in prime season.

The distribution channel such as retail stores and specialty stores have faced a reduction in their sales due to the shutdown condition in most parts of the world.

The post lockdown scenario is anticipated to turn out profitable for the umbrella market as it can be used to maintain the required social distancing practices and is likely to be considered as an essential item in India.

Umbrella market is expected to grow significantly in the coming years, driven by innovation, automation, and improved features, making it an essential household item. Various types of umbrellas are available in the market which provide innovative and new features, making umbrella an essential household item. Innovation and automation have brought many reforms in the traditional umbrellas and has gained popularity in many countries. The awareness about the automation and technology, improved attributes and additional features, concerns regarding the protection of skin from sunlight and harsh climate, improved aesthetics of the product, multipurpose umbrellas, wide choice of design, and enhanced raw material drive the growth of the global umbrella market. However, the lack of automation in the production of umbrellas and reliability on the hand assembly technique, expensive cost per unit, and limited distribution channels hinder the growth of the market. Contrarily, investments in innovation and automation, new product launches, an increase in the sustainable products and improved life and quality of the umbrellas present new opportunities in the umbrella market.

Improved features of traditional umbrellas

The augmenting fashion and style in the millennial and preceding generation Z have created the trend of improved design and style in the traditional and commonly used items. The improved technology and innovative proposals have led to the automation of umbrellas. Variants of umbrella such as classic umbrellas, bubble umbrellas, wind-resistant umbrellas, automatic umbrellas, golf umbrellas, artistic umbrellas, paper umbrellas, and child umbrellas are the recent trends in the market. The umbrella market has a huge market share as the use of umbrellas is not only limited to protect against rain and sunlight but is also used commercially. The promotional strategy by the use of beach umbrellas is followed by many leading companies such as Coca-Cola and PepsiCo; therefore the key players are focused to bring new variants of umbrella for entertainment as well as promotional use.
