

Jewish Spiritual Leaders' Institute Hosts In Person Alumni Gathering in New York

Twenty JSLI alumni Rabbis and Cantors attend gathering that offers time for sharing, caring and community

NEW YORK, NY, USA, February 26, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- On Sunday, February 18th and Monday, February 19th twenty alumni of the Jewish Spiritual Leaders' Institute gathered for an alumni retreat. The program was designed to give attendees the chance to network and share their experience as professional Jewish clergy. It was a time for sharing, caring and community.

The Tour of the Eldridge Street Synagogue

The event started with a tour the Eldridge Street Synagogue and the Lower East Side of Manhattan. This area of New York City was the hub of the Jewish immigrant experience. The day continued with a meeting of the organization to discuss the future of the Rabbinate in general and the role of JSLI trained Rabbis and Cantors in particular. It was the first in-person meeting

By 2024, the landscape of Rabbi education and ordination will have undergone a transformative shift, aligning with the innovative program of study offered by JSLI."

Rabbi Steve Blane

the organization has held since covid and so the first time many of the attendees met each other and Rabbi Steven Blane live face to face. The evening activities included an Asian inspired dinner with music and performances by many in the community. On Monday the group regathered for a farewell brunch.

The Jewish Spiritual Leaders' Institute was developed to offer Jewish professionals the chance to fulfill their dream of becoming Rabbis or Cantors. While it is traditional in its approach the pragmatic curriculum prepares students to meet the needs of modern Jews. The students study together with a cohort of others which provides a rich and enlivened experience to their studies.

According to Rabbi Blane, "By 2024, the landscape of Rabbi education and ordination will have undergone a transformative shift, aligning with the innovative program of study offered by JSLI. Soon, we are excited to unveil a comprehensive course dedicated to training Cantors within the Reform tradition. We take immense pride in our achievements and eagerly anticipate future advancements and opportunities."
