The Self-Stretch Recovery Room is equipped with Therabody compression full leg boots, allowing clients to experience deep relaxation and muscle recovery in a comfortable setting. These boots are engineered to enhance blood circulation, reduce muscle soreness, and speed up the recovery process, making them an invaluable asset after intensive workouts.

In addition to the compression boots, the recovery room features an array of Therabody's renowned Theraguns, foam rollers, and stretch bands. Each tool is carefully selected to cater to various stretching and muscle recovery needs, offering clients a comprehensive range of options for self-directed recovery sessions.

The space is designed to encourage relaxation and self-care, providing an optimal environment for clients to focus on client recovery needs. With the integration of Therabody's advanced recovery technologies, clients have the opportunity to take charge of client post-workout regimen, using tools that are at the forefront of sports science and physical therapy.

StretchX's Self-Stretch Recovery Room represents a commitment to offering innovative and effective wellness solutions. By partnering with Therabody and equipping the room with cutting-edge recovery tools, StretchX aims to empower clients to achieve better flexibility, faster recovery, and improved overall wellness.
