National tour brings the master class to more than 40 cities through April 2024; Tickets on Sale Now.

LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES, February 20, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Serial killers and their shocking, brutal and senseless acts of violence have long fascinated people. What compels an individual to commit such horrific crimes? Now, there is an opportunity to go behind the headlines and delve directly into the minds of notorious modern-day serial killers, getting up-close and personal into what motivates them. It's all part of The Psychology of Serial Killers and Why They Captivate Us, an extraordinary experience hosted by Dr. Rachel Toles, renowned Clinical Psychologist and criminal expert who has amassed nearly 200,000 followers on TikTok and first became fascinated with true crime when she witnessed the violent death of a teenage girl. The national tour starts today in Portland, OR before heading to more than 40 cities through April 2024.

The Psychology of Serial Killers is a touring master class into this very dark subject, tackling such questions as:

- What makes a serial killer?
- What is their motivation to kill and kill again?
- Are there different types of serial killers?
- Do they share common traits?
- Why are we so obsessed by them?

- How do we defend ourselves against a serial killer?

Most serial killers live seemingly normal lives among their neighbors while committing unspeakable murders for years before being apprehended. Attendees will get chilling insights into these deviant minds, their motivations and warped view of the world. As Dr. Toles explores the actual neurological brain activity and psychology behind those who desire to kill multiple times, she will provide fresh perspectives on headline grabbers like Jeffrey Dahmer, Ted Bundy, Richard Ramirez and John Wayne Gacy. She will also discuss some lesser known, yet equally fascinating serial killers.

Additionally, there will be an opportunity for audience members to participate in a live Q&A session with Dr. Toles.

"The Psychology of Serial Killers is not a typical lecture series; it pairs my deep understanding of human psychology with infamous and misunderstood cases, ultimately providing new insights and perspectives to the phenomenon of serial homicide. Humans seek to reveal the 'why' in order to unlock the mysteries behind this unnerving topic," says Dr. Toles. "Audiences will leave the theater with a greater understanding of
