Responding to the evolving needs of businesses and individuals, InOut Labs has introduced Proctored Instant Oral Fluid Drug Tests (from NOVIR) with a focus on compliance, accuracy, and user convenience. This testing solution allows employees to undergo drug tests from the comfort of their own location, eliminating the need to travel to a collection site.

One of the key advantages of the proctored video conference approach is the increased efficacy of the testing process. By leveraging secure video conferencing, we provide a convenient and effective solution for employees who no longer need to visit a collection site. This not only enhances the overall testing experience but also ensures compliance and accuracy," said Tim Thoelecke, C-SAPA, Founder at InOut Labs.

Employers and individuals can find detailed information about the process and benefits of proctored video conference testing at InOut Labs' website. The webpage outlines the step-by-step procedure, addressing any concerns about the security and reliability of remote testing.
