With a global reach, Autogroup International has converted over 4,500 vehicles to right-hand drive, exporting them to American car enthusiasts in 40+ countries, including India, Indonesia, Australia, the United Kingdom, and many countries across Africa and Asia. The company takes pride in its team of 175 skilled professionals who have successfully converted these American muscle cars to meet the standards and regulations of right-hand drive countries.

"We have been able to source very limited quantities of brand-new Dodge Challengers and Chevrolet Camaros which we convert to right-hand drive and ship worldwide," said Rob Hill, CEO of Autogroup International. "We have a few Dodge Challenger Hellcats, the Hennessey H1000 units, the stunning Camaro ZL1, and even a couple of the iconic Dodge Demon 170's available but they won't last long."

The release of the last batch of the iconic V8 petrol-powered right-hand drive Dodge Challengers and Chevrolet Camaros marks the end of an era for Autogroup International. Having converted hundreds of muscle cars over the years the last few brand-new vehicles in right-hand drive are sure to appreciate in value and be in huge demand.
