"Hip-hop is more than a genre – it's a way of healing, growing, and giving back to the neighborhoods that made us," said Brooklyn Borough President Antonio Reynoso. "All over Brooklyn and beyond, Maino is recognized as an inspiration because he proves the power of hip-hop to bring us together through good times and bad. Maino Day will serve as a celebration of his legacy and a reminder to Brooklynites to never give up and never forget to spread love."

Jermaine Coleman (Maino)

Speaker Profiles

Antonio Reynoso is Brooklyn's 20th Borough President. Born and raised in Los Sures, Williamsburg, Borough President Reynoso is the youngest Borough President elected to a four-year term, the first Latino to hold the office in the borough, and the first Dominican to be elected as a Borough President in NYC. Borough President Reynoso previously served as Council Member for the 34th Council District, representing portions of Bushwick and Williamsburg in Brooklyn, and Ridgewood in Queens. He is a notable advocate for environmental justice, reforming the criminal legal system, and closing the Rikers jail complex.

Jermaine Coleman (Maino) is a recipient of various music accolades and his influence extends beyond the sphere of hip-hop through his activism. His initiatives champion youth empowerment and showcase his dedication to his Brooklyn roots.
